BANQUET FOLLOWED CEREMONIES

With solemn pomp and splendor the Right Rev. Denis O'Donaghue was enthroned as Bishop of Louisville on Tuesday. Several thousand people gained entrance to the church, and hundreds had to be denied admission because there was no room. Bishop O'Donaghue seems to be a stickler for punctuality, and each function this week at which he was the central figure began exactly on schedule time. The procession from rectory to the Cathedral began at 9:30 o'clock.

The Rev. Father Weiss, as censer bearer, and the Rev. Dr. J. Gallagher led the procession. Behind them came the cross bearer and neolites, the secular clergy and priests of religious orders, each wearing his distinctive garb. Behind them came the visiting Bishops in purple. The last of them was the venerable Bishop Chard, of Indianapolis, supported on either side by the Very Rev. Father Churfrand, his Vicar General, and Father Gavlik, pastor of St. John's church, Indianapolis. Behind this group walked Bishop O'Donaghue with his assistant priests, Very Rev. James P. Cronin and Very Rev. Leo Greulich, O. M. C. Last of all came Archbishop Moeller, of Cincinnati, with his Vicar General and his Secretary.

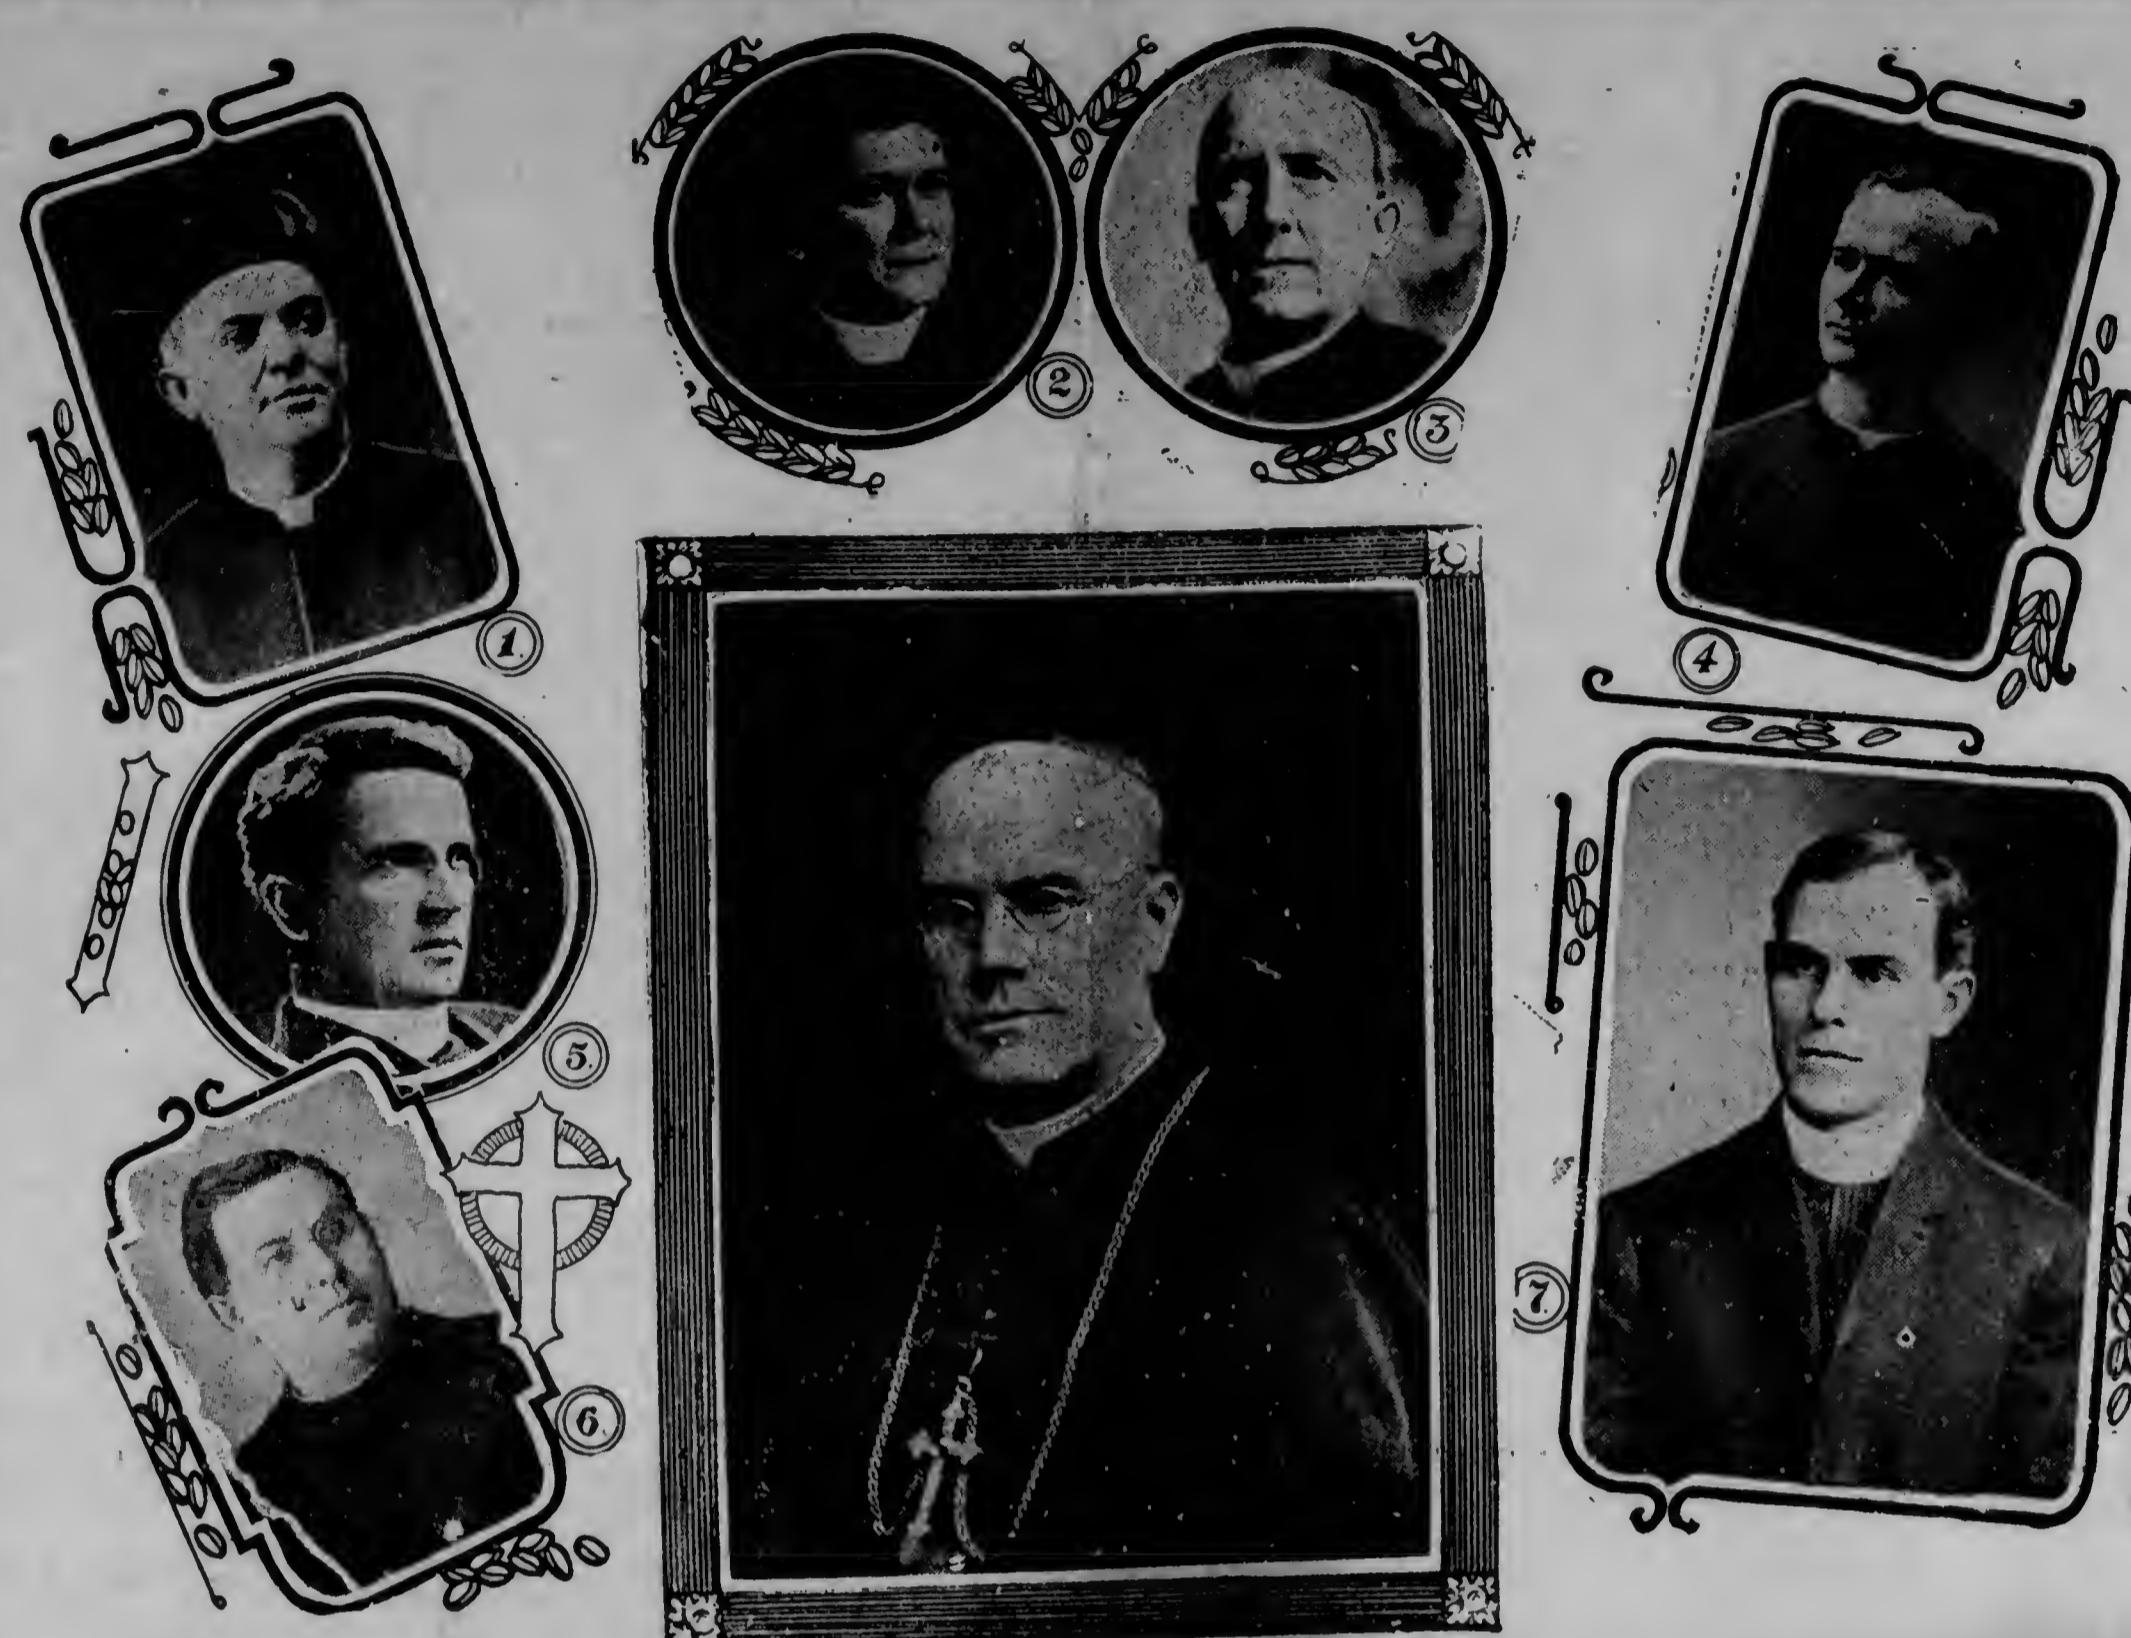

Upon entering the church the clergy began the solemn Gregorian chant, "Te Deum Laudamus." Within the vestibule the Bishop paused to besprinkle the portals with holy water, and then followed the procession to the sanctuary, where he was escorted to his throne and seated. The Very Rev. Father Cronin, Administrator of the diocese since the death of Bishop McCloskey, delivered a brief yet eloquent address, turning over the affairs of the diocese to the new prelate and welcoming him to Louisville in the name of the clergy.

Mass then began. It was solemn Pontifical, with Bishop O'Donaghue as celebrant. The scene in the sanctuary was a most brilliant one. The floor was filled with priests in black, white and brown. Seculars, Trappists, Passionists, Resurrectionists, Dominicans and Franciscans sat or knelt in the places assigned them. In front of the priests were the visiting Bishops in purple, and the two mitred Abbotts, wearing little white mitres. On a throne on the apse side of the sanctuary sat His Grace Archbishop Moeller. He was robed in purple that was almost red. The myriad of candles and electric lights reflected back these colors until the scene became wondrously beautiful.

A feature that lent additional beauty and solemnity was the music. The Cathedral choir, augmented by many of the leading Catholic soloists and supported by the Louisville Symphony Orchestra of twenty-four pieces, gave Haydn's Third or Imperial Mass. Although this music is familiar to nearly all Catholics in this diocese, it is doubtful if it was ever heard here to better effect. Prof. Joseph Chase presided at the organ, and the whole was directed by Gratz Cox. At the offertory Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" was given with fine effect.

At the gospel the Right Rev. C. P. Maes, Bishop of Covington, and one of the oldest of the province, preached an eloquent sermon, having for its theme the supremacy of the Papacy and the succession of the Popes; the dignity and duties of the episcopacy. At the conclusion of the mass Bishop O'Donaghue walked to the center of the sanctuary and delivered a brief address. He thanked the Archbishop and visiting Bishops and Abbotts for their presence, and he thanked Father Cronin for his prudence, zeal and discretion as Administrator since the death of Bishop McCloskey. He said he hoped to have the support of the clergy of the diocese in his struggles. A general can give commands, but unless his soldiers obey he can not hope for victory. Bishop O'Donaghue also asked the support of the people. He said he wanted them to pray for him; wanted them to help their priests and thus encourage him. Finally all knelt while the new Bishop imparted his episcopal blessing.

In the same order as upon entering the church, the procession moved back to the rectory, where the ecclesiastical robes were removed and the clergy prepared for the banquet at the Seelbach. That function began at 1 o'clock. Bishop O'Donaghue wore his purple robes and beret. All the other clergy wore the ordinary street garb. Bishop O'Donaghue sat at the head of the table, and between 150 and 200 guests sat down to dinner. The feast was served in Seelbach's best style. Bishop O'Donaghue invoked the Pope, and the group should include the figure of Lord Baltiagaine welcome to Louisville. Bishop O'Donaghue responded briefly, thanking Fathers Cronin and Rock for their kind words, and the clergy general for such a splendid welcome. This closed the exercises for the day, and before 6 o'clock nearly all the visiting Bishops and priests had taken trains for home.

PRIEST'S TRIBUTE.

Best Catholics and Irishmen Are Found In A. O. H.

There was, the Indiana Catholic, joy and gratitude and pride on every Irish countenance in Tomlinson Hall when Rev. J. A. Tracy, the eloquent missionary from Niagara University, spoke of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and what they had done for the church and the republic and the race.

"I have traveled practically all over this country," he said, "and I say deliberately and from experience that the best Catholics, the best Irishmen, and the best and most loyal citizens of our republic are to be found in the ranks of this great old organization, the A. O. H. If there are any Irishmen here who do not belong now, I say to you, join this grand old Irish Catholic society.

Its love of country will make you a better Irishman, its teachings will make you a better American, and its never failing devotion to Mother Church will make you a better Catholic. I say it without fear of contradiction that the Irishman in America who forgets Ireland and her struggle will soon forget the faith. Give me the really patriotic Irishman, or Irish-American, and I will show a staunch Catholic."

The A. O. H. has proven its devotion to the church in more ways than one. When the Catholic University at Washington was struggling in the early years of its existence, the old A. O. H. came forward with $50,000 and handed it to the university. They did it, too, without advertising it in the newspapers, without any accompaniment of tinsel symbols. All honor to the A. O. H. My its members multiply, and may its inspirations for Ireland's independence be fulfilled.

Catholic Press and Literature Sustain Severe Loss.

When it became known last Saturday that Charles J. O'Malley, the able and brilliant writer and poet, was dead, it was realized that the Catholic press and literary world had sustained a severe loss. Charles O'Malley was born and raised on a farm in Union county, this State, where he lived until he reached manhood and became the head of an interesting family. He was highly educated and was successful as a writer, but not as a publisher. Mr. O'Malley will be remembered in Kentucky as the publisher of the Midland Review. Leaving Louisville he has since been associated with Catholic journalism in Texas, Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York, but for the past two years was editor of the New World, issued in Chicago. Besides his wife, who is also noted for her literary genius, several children survive him. The funeral services were held in Chicago, after which the body was brought to Kentucky and interred near the Academy where Mr. O'Malley received his education and where the happiest days of his life were spent. The bereaved family goes out the heartfelt sympathy of all who were associated with or knew the deceased.

NEW IDEA BAZAR

For St. Cecilia's Church to Open Next Monday
Night.

Everything is in readiness for the opening Monday night of the big bazaar to be given for the benefit of St. Cecilia's new church at Mackin Council hall on Twenty-sixth street. The Executive Committee in charge of this undertaking has named it the "New Idea Bazaar" and intends to carry out the idea in every detail. There will be no soliciting of chances in the hall during the bazaar, a very objective feature with most affairs of this kind and one that keeps a large number of persons away. The committee is to be commended for their action, and there is no doubt that this affair will prove one of the most successful of the kind ever given in Louisville. Many persons will attend and the hall should be crowded every night, each one contributing voluntarily what his means permit, and then go home with praises for the new idea bazaar."

There will be four pretty booths and a well supplied country store, with A. G. Weber at its head. Two that are certain to be meccas for the young men will be the Young Ladies' Sodality booth, presided over by Miss H. Riordan, and the St. Joseph Sodality booth, in charge of Miss Nettie May. Both will be assisted by the youth and beauty of the West End. Mackin Council's booth, with James Mullarkey at its head, will be an attractive spot, as will also that of the Altar Society, which will be presided over by Mrs. John Carr. This society will serve supper every evening, and on Sunday, April 10, there will be a special dinner and supper and an abundance for all who attend.

The various committees in charge are made up from the following well known gentlemen: Charles S. Ralby, General Chairman; Walter L. Adams, T. Shelley, William Kerberg, Thomas D. Cline, Frank G. Adams, John Kenney, Andy Kast, Frank Baurla, George Recktenwald, Lawrence Kieffer and Thomas Aulbrook. Ex-Alderman George J. Butler, Chairman of the Reception Committee, will have as his assistants President John Kenney, Mrs. Charles N. Jaeger, Miss Mary Conroy, Miss B. Riordan, Mrs. G. Miller and James Mullarkey.

Invitations have been sent out and the night set for Catholic bodies in the following order: Monday for Mackin Council, Tuesday for the Young Ladies' Sodality, Wednesday for the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Thursday for the Knights of Columbus, and Friday for the Knights of St. John. Tuesday and Friday afternoons have been given to the children, with Saturday for parish night and Sunday for the Altar Society dinner and supper. The bazaar will close with everybody's night on Monday, when all articles will be disposed of, including the combination book prizes.

GALA TIME

For Friends of the Ladies' Auxiliary Tuesday
Night.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, recognized as one of the most influential and practical societies of Catholic women in existence, will entertain its members and friends at Falls City Hall, Twelfth and Market, next Tuesday night, with a reception, eucharistic party and dance, and a gold evening is promised all who attend. Division 1 generously donated the use of its hall for this night, and therefore the ladies will have three halls for their friends. For several weeks the members have been perfecting plans for this occasion. Under the lead of Miss Rose Sweeney, Miss Fannie Kennedy, Mrs. Dan Dougherty, Mrs. Margaret Foley, Mrs. Ross Ansback, and Misses Maggie Coughlin, Mary Corcoran, Julia Kelly, Maggie Hourigan, Julia Hession, Elizabeth and Bertha King, Josie Godfrey, Nellie Downing, Maggie Callahan and Nellie Nolan, an excellent and varied programme will be presented, and they have reason to expect a visit from their friends from all parts of the city.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is carrying on a noble work and is entitled to the support of the six divisions of the Falls' Cities. These good women never failed to respond when called upon for aid for church or charity, and this will be a good opportunity to show appreciation and help replenish their treasury and pay for the beautiful costumes just purchased for the degree team.

Division 4, A. O. H., met in regular session Monday evening in Bertrand Hall, with President John Hennessy in the chair, and who had been warned by Vice President Thomas Lynch not to absent himself again, as at the previous meeting the members had worked him overtime in trying to quell strenuous debates. The division received two invitations, one from the Ladies' Auxiliary to attend their dance and eucharist on April 5, and one from Division 1 to attend their open meeting on May 3. Both were accepted. Michael Ward, Steve Toomey and Charles Callahan were reported on the sick list.

William P. McDonough introduced a resolution thanking State Senators Greenwood A. Taylor and E. A. Hogg for their successful fight at Frankfort on the Bible reading bill, which meant compulsory Bible study in the public schools.

Bishop O'Donaghue arose and stood surveying the scene for several minutes. Then he began to talk slowly and impressively. He addressed those assembled as "My dear friends." He thanked Mr. McDermott for his able address, and said he hoped to do the work so ably outlined. He was not a stranger to Louisville, he said, but he had been astonished at the welcome accorded him. "I have only been here two days, but it seems a long time, not that I have grown tired of it, but because I am pleased. Now if you don't like me, I won't go back to Indiana anymore." He also paid tribute to the press reports of the two days' festivities, but said it was done not for him but for the glory of God and the church.

Clergy and people broke into applause as he seated himself. Then the ushers directed the people from the side aisle to approach. Each person walked to the center, bowed low before the Bishop and then retired down the main aisle. It took forty minutes for all to pass before the new prelate. While this homage was being paid him the choir sang Gounod's "Praise Ye the Fathers." A quartette from the Concordia Singing Society, made up of Messrs. J. J. Mueller, Frank J. Echelmeyer, Philip Stark and Joseph Uebelhor, sang Kremer's "Capella."

Bishop O'Donaghue Won People With His Impressive Response.

ALL MADE OBEISANCE AT CLOSE

Tuesday the Right Rev. Bishop O'Donaghue was in the hands of the clergy of the diocese; Wednesday he was left to the tender mercies of the laity, and admirably well did all acquitted themselves. In the morning at 9 o'clock the larger children of the Catholic parochial schools and academies assembled at the Cathedral. The girls wore gaily colored frocks and the boys neat suits. Each child wore ribbons, some purple, the color of the Bishop's robes; some green, the episcopal color; and others white and yellow, the Papal colors.

Bishop O'Donaghue celebrated a low mass while the children sang hymns to the Sacred Heart of Jesus and to the Blessed Virgin. At the conclusion of the mass the pupils of Sacred Heart Academy sang two stanzas of the Te Deum. After the Bishop had been disengaged of his vestments he took his seat upon the throne. Master John Curley, representing the Cathedral parish, delivered an address of welcome in English, knelt and kissed the episcopal ring and handed his written address to the Bishop. Joseph Pleitz, of St. Mary's school, delivered a similar address in German, and also presented a written copy to Bishop O'Donaghue.

The Bishop then left his throne and advancing to the sanctuary ringing a bell to call the children. The principal theme of his remarks were: "Suffer little children to come unto me." He told them little stories and urged them to be diligent, so that they might grow up to be good citizens, good men and women.

After the Bishop ceased speaking he seated himself in a chair. The gates of the sanctuary were thrown open so that each child might have a good look at their new shepherd. On his right and left stood Masters Curley and Pleitz. The children from the various schools, marshalled by their teachers, passed in front of the Bishop, bowed and reverently and then made their exit via the main aisle, the while singing "Holy God, We Praise Thee Thy Name."

The adult people of Louisville were received by the Bishop at the Cathedral on Wednesday night. The hour set was 8 o'clock, and long before the vast edifice was packed. Just before the Bishop and escort of priests emerged from the sanctuary the choir gave "Open Ye Portals" from Gounod's "Redemption." The Bishop was the first to enter. He was seated in the center of the sanctuary facing the people. On his right sat Fathers P. M. J. Rock, Thomas W. White and Martin O'Connor; on the left were Fathers James P. Cronin, Patrick Walsh and Charles P. Raffo.

After all had found seats the Hon. E. J. McDermott arose on a little platform that had been erected for the occasion and delivered an address of welcome in behalf of the assembled laity. He told of the esteem in which the Bishop was held and pledged the loyal support of the people, and dwelt upon the unity and peace of the church. He spoke of the illustrious men that have preceded Bishop O'Donaghue as heads of this see, and expressed the hope that the new prelate would become as illustrious through his governance of the diocese.

Mr. McDermott testified to the freedom and intelligence of the Catholic church; of the brotherly love its teachings inculcated. After referring to the necessity of religious education, he described the freak religions and various isms that were springing up for lack of religious training. He paid tribute to women as guardians of the home as the fond mother of gentle daughters and vigorous men, but decried women in politics and public life. In conclusion he again welcomed the Bishop to Louisville.

Bishop O'Donaghue arose and stood surveying the scene for several minutes. Then he began to talk slowly and impressively. He addressed those assembled as "My dear friends." He thanked Mr. McDermott for his able address, and said he hoped to do the work so ably outlined. He was not a stranger to Louisville, he said, but he had been astonished at the welcome accorded him.

"I have only been here two days, but it seems a long time, not that I have grown tired of it, but because I am pleased. Now if you don't like me, I won't go back to Indiana anymore." He also paid tribute to the press reports of the two days' festivities, but said it was done not for him but for the glory of God and the church.

Clergy and people broke into applause as he seated himself. Then the ushers directed the people from the side aisle to approach. Each person walked to the center, bowed low before the Bishop and then retired down the main aisle. It took forty minutes for all to pass before the new prelate. While this homage was being paid him the choir sang Gounod's "Praise Ye the Fathers." A quartette from the Concordia Singing Society, made up of Messrs. J. J. Mueller, Frank J. GAINS FAVOR.

People's Bank to Protect Middle Class From Sharks.

The People's Bank, now in process of organization, is growing in public favor daily and its promoters feel much encouraged, as the success is being subsidized by the leading bankers, merchants, manufacturers, professionals and mechanics of Louisville. The plan is to do a legitimate business and save the small borrower from becoming the victim of the merciless loan shark. This bank has been chartered under the general banking laws of the State of Kentucky. The capital stock will be $100,000, the par value being $10 per share, with $1 additional to create surplus and cover organization expenses. The United States Trust Company has been appointed trustee to hold all payments on subscriptions until such time as the organization committee may authorize the fund turned over to the officers of the bank. All payments are to be refunded in full to the subscribers.

Y. M. C. A.

The secular press and many benevolent people without any strong attachment to any church, and even some Catholics, have regarded the Young Men's Christian Association not as a militant Protestant organization, but merely as a benevolent society of liberal men who believed in Christ and who wanted to have a common meeting place for young men in need of innocent amusement and honest associates in fit surroundings. Money has been solicited and contributed and newspaper editorials in the daily press have appeared to urge the public to support and applaud this society on the assumption that it was non-sectarian and charitable in the broadest sense.

For some time, however, it has been said by a few that this association was not non-sectarian; that it was founded on narrow lines and was a militant proselytizing body for Protestant churches, among which, of course, it was supposed to play no favorites. All doubt on this matter has been settled by the publication of the constitution of the association in its official organ, the Young Man, on March 24, 1910. Here it is:

ARTICLE I.—OBJECTS.

Section 1. It shall be the object of the association to seek out young men and endeavor to bring them under moral and religious influences; to secure their attendance, at some place of worship; to introduce them to the members and privileges of this association; to aid them in selecting suitable boarding places and employment, and by every possible means to surround them with Christian influences.

ARTICLE II.—MEMBERS.

Section 1. The members of this association shall consist of two classes, namely: Active and associate.

See. 2. Any man over sixteen years of age who is a member in good standing of a Protestant Evangelical church (the word Evangelical being understood as defined by the International convention at Portland, Maine, in 1869) may become and thereafter continue an active member by payment of such annual dues as may be prescribed by the Board of Directors. None but active members shall have the right to vote or hold office.

The dictionary defines "Evangelical" thus: "Holding or conforming to what the Protestants regard as the fundamental doctrines of the gospel, especially the atonement, justification by faith and regeneration, * * * Seeking the conversion of sinners; evangelistic * * * one who holds evangelical doctrines; in the Church of England (a State church), one of the Low-church party; in Germany (in State church) Lutheran."

Would our daily press write editorials and local matters to induce everybody to contribute money to support a Jewish or Catholic society organized "to seek out" young men and to get them to go to a Jewish or Catholic church and in which society only Jews or Catholics could "have the right to vote or hold office?" The daily press pretends to regard the Y. M. C. A. as non-sectarian; but evidently it is not. It may be and no doubt is a good society; but clearly it is a thorough-going Protestant proselytizing and should so stand before the public.

STARTLING.

Recent investigations and graft exposures in connection with the robbery of the Catholic church have astonished and the Catholic world. Not since the Panama canal affair has France been so scandalized.

Bare-faced thieving, piled on to what may be called legal robbery in the management of the church sequestration fund, together with the evidence of graft of the most sordid kind in the management of the municipal finances, can no longer be denied. The French people now realize the mistake of placing their government in the hands of men who disregard God and his church, for which they will pay a heavy penalty.

In the matter of the church sequestration funds it has been shown that not only have properties worth millions been sold for a pittance to favorites, but the State has been robbed of the greater portion of the pittance. Then take the Marseilles Hospital site scandal, which has just developed. When the French Government distributed the proceeds of the sales of convents and other ecclesiastical domains, a sum of 1,750,000 francs was given to the town for the benefit of a local charity known as the Hospital du Marne. A site was to be purchased in the first instance. This was secured for 550,000 francs. It is now found that land adjacent, and of larger area, was sold for 90,000 francs. This should shame the

CHURCH TOO SMALL

Owing to the increase in the number of Catholic residents in Clifton the people of St. Francis of Rome church, of which the Rev. Thomas W.
White is the zealous and beloved pastor, deem it necessary to enlarge the sacred edifice that has served them for so many years. With this end in view a handsome fund has been subscribed, and it is expected that the work on the addition will begin in the very near future. One member of the congregation contributed $800, and Father White hopes to be able to pay for the work as it progresses.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing
the Past Week—General News Notes.

Division 1 will not meet Tuesday night, having surrendered its ball to the auxiliary.

Hibernians of North Walpole, N.
H., have raised $100 for the Irish home rule cause.

Don't forget the entertainment of the Ladies' Auxiliary at Falls City Hall next Tuesday night. Let's all be there.

when interesting and important counciliations will be read. The officers urge members to be present.

Division 3 meets Monday night.
Two banquets were given by the Hibernians of Cortland, N. Y., on St.
Patrick's day. Over 100 ladies graced the festive board of the auxiliary, over which Mrs. Daniel Kieran presided.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets next Wednesday night, when it is expected the new costumes for the degree team will be placed on exhibition.
All who can are asked to attend this meeting.

On Palm Sunday at Montgomery, Ind., Division 2 initiated a class of candidates into the order. Light refreshments were served, at which all the members of the Hibernian families participated.

Division 2 is making great preparations for the eulogy and ball to be given under its auspices on April 15.
The prizes to be awarded will be many and handsome, and the advance sale of tickets indicate a social and financial success.

The beautiful silk American flag won by the forty-five team of Division 7 of Syracuse will be presented at a meeting to be held next Thursday.
The County Board will be present, and all the teams that contested have been invited.

The County Board Literary Committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Paul will be entertained by Division 2 next week. The visits thus far made are productive of good results, and many cities may follow the example set by the sisters in Minnesota.

The Ancient Order of South Bend, Ind., celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization by receiving holy communion in a body on Palm Sunday. They attended mass with their families on Thursday at St. Patrick's church, and closed the celebration with a banquet in the evening.

County President Welsh has compiled his official report for the year 1909, and members will be interested and gratified with the contents thereof. The financial statement shows the largest amount ever paid out in a single year for charity and sick benefits, but with a handsome sum remaining in the division treasuries. President Welsh also reports an increase in the membership, notwithstanding the hard times and other adversities with which the order has had to contend during the past year. The Hibernians of the city are to be congratulated for their excellent showing.

THEY GOT EVEN.

Louis Bauer, the genial and successful merchant at St. Matthews, was born on St. Patrick's day a long time ago. For many years it had been his custom to celebrate the anniversary by entertaining his friends on March 17. Therefore St. Patrick's day was looked forward to with no little interest by the good people of St. Matthews and vicinity, but this year they were sorely disappointed.
They gathered in large numbers for the celebration, not knowing that Mr. Bauer was at Martinsville, Ind., a victim of rheumatism. Some wag intimated that he was only dodging his friends, who were not to be thwarted. Upon his arrival home last Saturday they gathered from all quarters, and it will be some time before Louis can recover from the effects of their prolonged thirst and hunger.

FEDERATION.

The April meeting of the Louisville Federation of Catholic Societies will be held next Thursday night at the Catholic Woman's Club building on Walnut street, between Sixth and Seventh. As nearly all the local societies are represented the officers have reason to expect a large attendance of delegates. President Sheridan will occupy the chair, and the business and talks promise to be of more than ordinary interest. The federation movement has made great progress in the larger cities, and Louisville delegates should attend these meetings and keep the local body among the leaders.

WILL HAVE GRAND OPENING.

Bosler's Leather House will be thrown open for the inspection of the public on Monday. The new and commodious quarters are located at 617 West Main street. From 10 o'clock a. m. until 4 o'clock p. m. a tasty lunch with refreshments will be at the disposal of visitors, and all are invited not to be backward in helping themselves. Bosler Bros. is an old and established firm in leather and findings and in their new home will have the finest piece of its kind in the South. Edward Bosler is the sole proprietor of the establishment.

organized a baseball club, and after a month's practice will issue challenges to K. of C. teams in surrounding cities.

Colorado Springs Council members received holy communion in a body on Easter Sunday at St. Mary's church.

Many visiting members accompanied the local Knights.

The proceeds of the grand charity ball to be given next Tuesday by the Knights of Pittsburg will be turned over to Right Rev. Bishop Canevin, to be distributed among the charitable institutions of his diocese.

At the last Town Court held in Longford there was only one case, simple drunkenness, to be disposed of.

Damage amounting to $1,000, not covered by insurance, was caused by fire in the premises of Edward Hammond, the Donegal hardware merchant.

Archbishop Walsh has decided that it would be quite contrary to the constitution of the Christian Brothers to open a secondary school in Wicklow.

Regret is felt throughout Comty Wexford at the death of William Murphy, a successful merchant of Enniscorthy, which occurred after a brief illness.

A verdict of death from accidental drowning was returned at Derry on the body of Samuel Bell, aged twenty-nine, who had been missing since January 14.

The death is announced of John Dolan, J. P., a well known public man in Leitrim and Rosemount. He was at one time largely interested in the coal industry.

Death came suddenly at Castletown to James Liggy, D. C., who was for a considerable time a member of the Navan District Council and held in the highest esteem by all classes.

There is much disappointment over the failure of the Westmeath County Council to acquire the house of Oliver Goldsmith at Lissey. Negotiations were dropped owing to the price demanded.

Public bodies protested against the action of the Crown in fixing the opening of the Galway Assizes for St. Patrick's day. They characterized the decision as a direct insult to the citizens.

A movement is on foot in the County Down for the erection of a suitable memorial to the late Brother Dempsey, who did much for education as Superior of the Newry Christian schools.

The body of Henrietta Reilly, of Belfast, who had been missing since the end of November, has been discovered in an advanced state of decomposition in the River Lagan, near the Twin Islands.

Rev. Edward Scanlan, the new curate for Birr, recently celebrated his first mass in the parish. Father Scanlan, who came to Birr from Minlough, County Clare, is a nephew to the Dean of Killaloe.

The Athy handball court, which has recently been renovated by the Duke of Leinster at a cost of over $300, is about to be placed in the control of the local Urban Council at a rent of one shilling a year.

The Carrick-on-Suir Urban Council has presented to Owen Finlay, a lad of sixteen, an engraved silver watch, a recognition from the Carnegie hero fund, for his bravery in saving the life of a boy who was drowning.
